WEngage specializes in providing customer contact and optimizing the customer experience at enterprises through a wide range of communication channels. With this Privacy Statement, we wish to inform and give you - as our customer, business partner, website visitor and user of our services - as much control as possible over the collection, processing and use of your personal data by us. This Privacy Statement applies primarily to the personal data we process from you as a data controller. As, in providing our services, we also process personal data on behalf of and commissioned by our clients, acting purely as their 'processor', we clarify under article 2 below when we act as a data controller and when as a processor within the meaning of the GDPR.

For specific questions regarding the processing of your personal data or to exercise your rights, you can always contact our Data Protection Officer (also "DPO"):

- by e-mail to: dpo@wengage.eu
- by post to: WEngage, attn: DPO, Woluwelaan 158, 1831 Machelen, Belgium.

2. To whom and when does this Privacy Notice apply?

This Privacy Statement applies in cases where WEngage is responsible for processing your data. This means that WEngage decides for what purposes (why) and by what means (how) your data will be processed. However, when our client decides these factors, this Privacy Statement does not apply. At WEngage, in the context of our activities, we sometimes act as a data controller, and sometimes as a processor of our client. Therefore, we briefly clarify below when this Privacy Statement specifically applies.

2.1 WEngage as data controller: in effect

In respect of the data of the persons listed below, WEngage acts as a data controller. Consequently, the Privacy Statement applies to these processing operations. The categories below also include persons who belonged to these categories in the past (e.g. former customer), or persons who may belong to these categories in the future (e.g. potential customer). Where any of the persons referred to below is a legal entity, we still process data of our contacts at these entities and the GDPR continues to apply.

- clients, being our business customers to whom we provide our services described above;
- business partners, who assist us in operating our business or cooperate with us;
- users of our website www.wengage.eu ;
- participants in conversations we have on behalf of and commissioned by our clients (such as with our client's customers, users, prospects, employees and any other contacts). In case we do not act as a solely processor of our client with respect to your data (see for this article 2.2 below);
- other persons who would contact us, in case we do not act as a solely processor with respect to your data.

For the processing related to the following specific categories of data subjects, please refer to the privacy declarations we have drawn up specifically for them:

- candidate employees who apply via our jobs page: Working at WEngage · Werken bij WEngage

2.2 WEngage as processor: only applicable for its own purposes as defined below

In specific circumstances, we act as a (sub)processor of our clients. This is in particular the case with regard to the data of our clients' customers, users, prospects, employees and any other data subjects whose data we process in the task of the provision of services to our clients as further described below.

Clients call upon our services in order to, with regard to their customers, users, prospects, employees and any other contacts, among other things: offer products and process orders, perform customer service or helpdesk tasks, and keep customer files up to date. In doing so, depending on the specific service provided, we will process certain of your data, such as your name and contact details; address data; order and billing data; appointments, requests and complaints; communication histories; conversation recordings and any other relevant data. In this case, we process your data mainly on behalf of our client, which means that under the GDPR we act as our client's 'processor'. In doing so, we act only for our own purposes, and thus as processors, in respect of conversation recordings and associated metadata. We may make such recordings and keep them for a limited period of time for the strict purpose of internal quality control within our call centers, as further described under article 3.

In our role as a processor, we must comply with our client's instructions in relation to your data at all times. We are contractually obliged to delete your data after the expiry of a pre-specified period, as agreed with the client. Each processing operation we carry out on behalf of our clients, we conclude a processing agreement with them in advance, based on the standard contractual clauses adopted for this purpose by the European Commission in implementation of Article 28(7) GDPR, or on our Standard Terms and Conditions for Data Processing which include the required disclosures in accordance with Article 28(3) GDPR. Our Standard Terms and Conditions for data processing can be found on this page in PDF.

Since the client, as data controller, bears ultimate responsibility for these processing operations, we refer you to our relevant client for any questions or requests you may have in this regard, regarding the way your data are processed. Should we ourselves receive questions or requests which (partly) relate to processing operations we carry out on behalf of our clients, we will forward these to our relevant client for further processing and inform you accordingly.

3. What personal data do we process, under what legal basis, for what purposes and for how long?

Below we clarify what data we may process from you, under which legal basis we process it, for what purposes, and for what periods of time. We do not necessarily process all your data listed below. This depends on the specific situation, your preferences and the channels through which we are in contact. For the sake of clarity, we first indicate below which data we may generally process from all our contacts. Then we will clarify which data we may additionally process from specific categories of contacts, more specifically our clients and business partners, and participants in conversations we conduct on behalf of and commissioned by our clients.

WEngage carries out the following processing of personal data:

4. With whom do we share your personal data?

4.1 Internal transfers, within our corporate group

WEngage is a corporate group (see under article 1) under which various companies and commercial activities are housed. We may share your personal data within our group for administrative and infrastructure-related reasons, as well as for commercial reasons such as, in particular, ensuring optimal service. A client or partner of one of our companies is considered a client or partner of the entire group. As a data subject, it is of course possible to oppose the transfer and possible further use of your data for commercial purposes under the terms of the GDPR by contacting us for this purpose as further explained under article 10.

4.2 External transfers, to third parties

In addition, we may - under certain conditions - transfer your personal data to third parties. This in particular when strictly necessary in the light of the above-mentioned purposes, or if we are required to do so by law.

Some of these third parties work on behalf of WEngage and/or are engaged to carry out an aspect of WEngage's services, such as digital storage of our customer data, managing our websites and IT systems, providing services or support to our clients, or for dispute management.

To the extent these third parties act as processors in doing so, WEngage will capture this into a processor agreement in each case. WEngage will only share personal data relevant and necessary for the performance of their specific assignments. Treating this personal data confidentially and securing it adequately is always included as a requirement in these processor agreements.

When we transfer personal data to third parties, this is generally in the context of ensuring the best possible service and efficient business operations, as well as safeguarding our interests and complying with our legal obligations. Specifically, we may transfer personal data to the following categories of recipients, with these third parties acting as our processors in certain cases:

- Postal companies and courier services if we need to send you written communications or items;
- Payment service providers if we receive payments from you, or transfer payments to you;
- Insurers for the purpose of covering our professional liability in the context of our operations and services;
- External representatives, consultants or any other business partners involved in the context of operating our businesses and providing our services;
- Processors who assist us technically or IT-wise in the operation of our businesses, for the purpose of secure and efficient digital data management within our businesses and optimal service delivery, such as software service providers and call center system providers or sub-suppliers of call center services;
- Organizations with which we enter into a business transaction that results in the inclusion of additional entities in our group (e.g. as part of a merger), or that results in the transfer of some of our entities or business assets;
- Government bodies, judicial authorities and practitioners of regulated professions such as accountants and lawyers, or other independent external advisers, for the purpose of complying with our legal obligations and defending our interests, as required.

Where we process your data in our role as processors on behalf of our clients who act as data controllers in the process (see article 2.2 for that purpose), we may transfer your data to them within the scope of our services to the relevant client(s) and in accordance with their instructions.

5. How do we secure your personal data?

WEngage takes and maintains appropriate technical and organizational measures to ensure the adequate protection of your personal data. These measures will secure your personal data against loss or any form of careless, incompetent or unlawful use, processing or access. In doing so, we take into account the nature of the personal data to be protected, the risk of processing, the state of the technic and the implementation costs of the measures.

We only grant access to data to our own employees and third parties if they need access for legitimate, relevant business purposes. Access is hereby limited to those personal data they need to properly perform their assignments or privileges.

6. Where do we store and process your personal data?

The European Economic Area ("EEA") includes the countries of the European Union, Norway, Liechtenstein and Iceland. The GDPR requires additional safeguards if your personal data is transferred to entities in countries outside the EEA (such as the conclusion of agreements based on the European Commission's Model Clauses).

As a corporate group, we have our headquarters in Belgium and we also aim to keep your data on servers and in data centers within the EEA as much as possible.

As a corporate group, we have a branch office in Morocco (see under article 1) so that we can transfer personal data within our group to our branch office in Morocco, when necessary in function of our services. Our basic services do not involve the transfer of data to our Moroccan branch, as this branch is only involved in the provision of services at the specific request of our client. We hold our Moroccan entity to the same data protection standards as our European branches. Additionally, model clauses have been concluded between our European branches and our Moroccan branch for the international transfer of personal data in accordance with Article 46(2)(c) GDPR, in case our client wishes to use the aforementioned option.

In addition, given the establishment locations of some of our processors, it is possible that in some cases we may have your data processed outside the EEA. This will only be done in or from countries that have been confirmed by the European Commission to ensure an adequate level of protection of your data, or where other measures have been taken to ensure the lawful processing of your data in these third countries in accordance with the requirements of the GDPR mentioned above. If this is a case of subcontracting our activities as a processor as described under article 2.2 (sub-processing), this will be explicitly and transparently included in the processor agreements with the client and sub-processor.

7. What rights do you have and how can you exercise them?

Below is an overview of the rights you have in relation to the processing of your personal data. If you wish to invoke one or more of the following rights, please contact our DPO using the contact details listed under article 1 of this Privacy Statement.

When you submit a request to exercise your rights, and if we have doubts about your identity, we will ask you to verify it by asking you to provide data and/or documents that allow you to identify yourself beyond reasonable doubt. We will always inform you of the action taken on your request at the latest within a period of 1 month after receipt of your request or after the additional identity verification (if necessary). In case of complex or frequent requests, this period can be extended to 3 months. In the latter case, we will inform you of the extension of the response period.

- Right of access and copy: You have the right to access your data and obtain a copy. This right also includes the possibility of requesting further information on the processing of your data, including on the categories of data processed about you and for what purposes.
- Right of rectification: You have the right to have us rectify and/or supplement your data if you believe that we hold inaccurate or incomplete personal data.
- Right to erasure: You have the right to request that we erase your data without unreasonable delay. However, we will not always be able to (fully) comply with such a request, for example when we still need the data in function of an ongoing agreement, or when the retention of certain data for a certain period of time is required by law.
- Right to restriction: You have the right to obtain from us the restriction of the processing of your personal data to an extent. In this way, processing is temporarily stopped until, for example, there is certainty about its accuracy.

- Right to object: You have the right to object to the processing of your data based on legitimate interest. This should be based on reasons specific to your situation. You can also specifically object to the use of your data for direct marketing without further motivation. Marketing messages via e-mail will always include an unsubscribe option.
- Right to data portability: You have the right to obtain the data you have provided to us yourself, with your consent or in execution of a contract, in electronic form. That way, they can be easily transferred to another organization. You also have the right to request us to transfer your data directly to another organization, if this is technically possible.

In addition rights mentioned in the above, you always have the right to file a complaint against WEngage with your data protection supervisory authority. You may do so with the supervisory authority of the EEA member state where you normally reside, you have your place of work or where the alleged breach has occurred. As the headquarters of our corporate group is located in Belgium, we refer below to the contact details of the Belgian Data Protection Authority.

For further information and the contact details of the supervisory authority of each EEA Member State, please refer to this website page of the European Data Protection Board with all relevant contact details. In addition, you can always turn to the competent civil court to bring a claim for compensation.

8. Amendments to the Privacy Statement

Our DPO conducts a review of this Privacy Statement at least annually in collaboration with our GDPR Team. The date on which this Privacy Statement was last amended can be found at the top of this page. We therefore invite you to always consult the latest version of this Privacy Statement on our website. In case of a substantial change to the Privacy Statement, we will directly inform the data subjects on whom it may have an impact, if possible.
